Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Tuesday 23 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Wet and windy in the northwest. Very mild southeast.

This Evening and Tonight:
Rain in the north and west, heavy at times, with gales on coasts and hills. Turning showery in the far northwest. Dry across central, southern and eastern England.

Wednesday:
Further rain across southern Scotland, Wales and northern England. Brighter with showers in the northwest. Sunny spells across southeast England, turning very mild. Windy for many.

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Cloud and any rain clearing southeast Thursday, sunny spells and a few showers elsewhere. Some rain in the northwest, otherwise turning increasingly settled from Friday. Mild, though overnight frosts likely.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.